Artist Discovery: Sarah Ames, Dylan Brady, Temecula Road

CMT Artist Discovery's latest additions — Sarah Ames, Dylan Brady, and Temecula Road — are the kinds of artists we love to spotlight. Just one look at these videos and you'll understand why we're obsessed.

The video for Temecula Road's "Never Knew I Needed You" is fueled by optimism, enthusiasm, and more than a little caffeine.

"The band performance section of the video was definitely something we'll never forget," says the trio. "Such a fun dynamic between the guys playing with us. Also, in between takes we were able to talk to the extras in the crowd that were hired to be in the video and get to know them! Some of which are our friends now! And you can't forget the two dozen coffee runs made throughout the day!"

The California band believes that the video captures the fun elements of love – "especially when you first meet someone and you're really into it," they say. "There's lots of 'heart racing' moments between the love interests and super-fun performance shots from us that come together to make this awesome video!"

Indeed, the finished video made an excellent impression. "Seeing the video for the first time was incredible we all were smiling ear to ear! It's always a little scary getting back the first cut of a music video because you never know what could happen in post-production, but Dustin Haney absolutely crushed it," they say.

"The big message we want people to get from this video is that love can hit you out of nowhere. So have fun, live life to the fullest, and don't worry too much cause you never know what might happen!"
