

August 5, 2019

11 Breakout Acts You May Have Missed At Lollapalooza 2019

With so many larger-than-life headliners at this year's Lolla in Chicago, here's a deeper dive on stellar artists who may have slipped under your radar

Scarypoolparty

For fans of: Lukas Graham, John Mayer

You may remember Alejandro Aranda from "American Idol" as the runner up on Season 2 this year. Aranda became known for performing his own original music on the television show which normally uses cover songs. Now he has created his own stage name, Scarypoolparty, and has one sold-out headlining tour under his belt and a fall tour coming up next. Even though he has yet to release a full-length debut album, fans knew every word to his songs at Lollapalooza.