ALEJANDRO ARANDA IS 'GRATEFUL' TO BE ADDED TO LOLLAPALOOZA LINEUP, FOLLOWING SUCCESS OF 'TONIGHT' RELEASE

He may be known as American Idol's most recent runner-up, but Alejandro Aranda has already shattered expectations for reality talent show finalists and is making a name for himself.

On the coattails of his newest single "Tonight," representatives of the Chicago-based music festival Lollapalooza announced Friday it would add Aranda—as Scarypoolparty—to the lineup.

"It's an honor to play at Lollapalooza," Aranda told Newsweek. "I feel super excited to be sharing music on such an important stage. Just gotta say I'm grateful for the opportunity."

The festival takes place August 1–4 and includes performances by Ariana Grande, Childish Gambino, Kacey Musgraves and many more. For a full list of performers, click here.

Aranda's performance will take place Saturday, August 3, along with headliners Twenty One Pilots and J Balvin.

If you're not going to be in the Chicago area during the first week of August, don't fret. Tickets for Aranda's national tour are on sale for cities such as San Francisco, Brooklyn and Nashville.
